KILLING THE SCHOOL CHILDREN.
Statistics published by the health service of the American Red Cross show that deaths among children of school age due to accidents are proportionately much larger than among either young children or older persons.

But of each 1,000 deaths of children between the ages of five and nine, 167 are due to accidents; of children between ten and fourteen, 177 are due to accidents.

In proportion deaths due to accident among children under five years of age and among adults are quite small.

No parents need to be told that the most valuable possessions they have are their children.

But it appears that there is great need for some power to be still into the minds of civil authorities the conviction that the most valuable asset the state possesses is its children.

Accidents do not "happen." There is a cause for every accident. Particularly in this time of traffic accidents, which are assuming alarming proportions in the larger centers.

Of what use is it to the municipality or the state to spend large sums in educating a child to grow up to be a good citizen if it permits him to be killed by an automobile before he becomes an economic factor in the community life?

Cities and traffic bureaus search madly for remedies for traffic accidents; "safety weeks" are proposed, debated, held; new and more drastic traffic rules are formulated, and more or less enforced; more severe penalties are inflicted by judges for driving recklessly, but the accidents continue.

It would seem that the engineering brains which built a Panama Canal, took two million men to Europe in the face of submarines, and built and perfected the large railroad and telephone systems in the world, might solve this problem, too.

But while the remedy is left in the hands of policemen to formulate, no matter how interested or willing, or while the answer to the problem is given into the hands of aldermen, mayors, and leading citizens, no matter how well-meaning, we will still continue to kill our children.

Traffic accidents to the young are a subject of national concern, state concern, city and town concern, of such gravity and magnitude that their prevention deserves the consideration of the very best minds in the country.

TOM SIMS' PHILOSOPHY

The Barton Bedtime Stories

Copyright 1922 by Associated Newspapers

"No daytime rambles!" That was the word the woodfolk carried from Dr. Muskrat's pond. And there wasn't any. Chalk Jay had flown out to the pines in the dawn to warn the partridge, and Nibble Rabbit had warned Bob White Quail to take to their wings. The only creature that wicked man could find to shoot his gun at was Cheever the Chickadee.

"No night flying!" That was Cheever's motto. He still thought the smelly old moon was playing her tricks just especially on him. You remember the tricks the smelly old moon had played. So he didn't see any one at all. He felt kind of lonesome. He poked on Dr. Muskrat's house and called "while, but nobody answered. 'I expect he's asleep," thought the flitting, and off he flipped to find some thisledown to add to the little silk blanket he sleeps in. But Dr. Muskrat wasn't asleep. He was wide awake. He'd thought up the most wonderful plan—so wonderful that it never even started to work, so I needn't tell you about it. He didn't bother to tell Cheever about the hunting man because a wet bit of bird who wouldn't fill the hole in your back tooth never gets shot. Nobody wants it. But he had his ear cocked for Tommy Peele's old dog Watch. Watch had promised to bring the little boy to visit him the minute school was out. It was time they were here by now—

They weren't because Louie Thompson had some wood to split. And Tommy Peele was helping him. Watch was just stalking round that woodpile on the tips of his toes, whining with impatience. Chalk Jay didn't care how long they took. That wood was full of fine fat grubs, delicious ones he never could get unless the axe laid their twisty holes open.

The waiting doctor heard a dog go "Err-yow!" right by his own flat stone. No wonder he didn't stop to listen. He dove out of his house, popped up his head and began, "All right, Watch, all in one breath. Then he gasped. It wasn't all right. It wasn't Watch!

It was a dog he had never seen—a great big red one. Its hair bristled and its eyes blazed at him. Quicker as thought Dr. Muskrat dove again. He dodged without even thinking. Lucky he did. "Bang-bang!" went the gun behind him. That hunter was back. This dog was with him.

"Err-yow!" wailed Watch at the woodpile. "Now will you come?" The axe went flying. Two pairs of legs, running down the main at top speed were all the answer he needed. Chalk Jay, flying not too far ahead, began to squawk: "Look out for us! We're sure a-coming!"

SULPHUR SOOTHES UGLY, ITCHING SKIN

The First Application Makes Skin Cool and Comfortable

If you are suffering from eczema or some other torturing, embarrassing skin trouble you may quickly be rid of it by using Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist.

This sulphur preparation, because of its germ destroying properties, seldom fails to quickly subdue itching even of fiery eczema. The first application makes the skin cool and comfortable. Rash and blotches are healed right up. Rowley Mentho-Sulphur is applied like any pleasant cold cream and is perfectly harmless. You can obtain a small jar from any good drug gist.

CHICKEN DINNER BY O. E. S. LADIES

Two Hundred Guests Enjoyed Excellent Menu, Good Music and Readings

More than 250 members of the Paris Chapter No. 5, Order of the Eastern Star, were entertained last night with an enjoyable program and elaborate chicken dinner at the Masonic Temple celebrating the Blues victory over the Reds in a most successful campaign for attendance.

The contest was begun about two months ago, and the teams have been very enterprising and energetic in arousing the interest and enthusiasm of members who had not been taking an active part in the lodge work.

Membership solicitation is not sanctioned by the order, so this work was entirely within the membership of the chapter.

After the regular session of the lodge, a short but entertaining program was given and the audience showed its appreciation of the various numbers with very generous applause.

Mrs. Benton Fisher's lovely violin solo was accompanied by Miss Velma Green, and clever readings were rendered by Mrs. T. G. Martin and Miss Eunice Fisher.

The welcome address was given by J. C. Hathaway, Rev. T. L. Huffstutler made a characteristically entertaining talk, and Rev. B. E. Wallace closed with a well-worded appreciation of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Afterward the winners of the contest and their guests repaired to the basement dining room of the temple, where long tables were arranged to seat about 200 guests.

The attendance was so large that the ladies were compelled to serve an overflow in cafeteria style.

The table presented a most attractive appearance, as they were decorated with vases and baskets of gay fall flowers very prettily combined and arranged.

A most bountiful plate supper was served—chicken most appetizingly prepared and surrounded with all the relishes and "fixins" that belong with the delicacy. Delectable cream and cake formed the dessert course and a wee silk flag was stuck in each portion as a souvenir of the occasion and a reminder of another victory besides that of the winners of the contest.

It was a most delightful affair, and the ladies are to be sincerely complimented upon their culinary prowess and their success as entertainers.

SHERIFF ELECT HURT IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT

T. W. Kirk, sheriff-elect of Red River county, who lives near Bagwell, met with a painful automobile accident Wednesday evening while he and his wife and little daughter were returning home from town. They had made several purchases. He was driving along the new highway that has recently been constructed, when a sack of oats came near turning over and spilling.

Holding the steering wheel with one hand he reached out with the other to seize the sack of oats and guided his automobile into a ditch. It turned over down the embankment about five feet.

His wife and little girl were thrown clear of the car on the outside of the dump and escaped injury. He was caught against it in the shoulder, which was wrenched and severely bruised.

The extent of the injury had not been determined pending the making of an x-ray picture, but it was not thought that he was seriously injured.

CUNNINGHAM PEOPLE TO ATTEND CELEBRATION

A visitor from Cunningham yesterday said that everybody from down there will be in Paris tomorrow to witness the Armistice Day celebration.

LESS MEAT IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You

No man or woman who eats too much meat can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Big meat eaters may develop uric acid which excites the kidneys; they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood; then we get sick. Rheumatism, headache, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a scalding sensation, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus often ending in the bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure, make a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complication.

DEFENSE RELATED THREATS MADE BY DR. E. H. B. STEELE

directly, in this matter of a common difference.

James H. Rollins, one of the undersigned, joins the above named J. W. Cunningham and E. H. B. Steele in hereby agreeing to lay aside this common difference, each and all agreeing that it is forever past. We, the three of us believe that in such action we best serve ourselves, our families and our friends, as well as to render the best service to our community. We realize that the perpetuation of such differences means a misspent, unhappy life. We agree never to discuss this matter again with any one and shall use our best endeavor to the end that such differences be not propagated or sustained by our friends nor by members of our families. We each agree that each party hereto shall from this date henceforth feel free and be free to pursue each his own avocation or trade whatever and whenever that may be, resting in absolute security that this difference is ended. We commend ourselves in this action to the end that we believe it to be the action of men, and that all future action on our part and the part of each of us shall be along the planes of right living and good citizenship and justice to all men.

(Signed) J. W. Cunningham.

Two or three additional witnesses were introduced yesterday to testify to the handwriting of the defendant and to testify as to whether they thought the letters which had been introduced into court and which figured largely in the testimony Wednesday were in Cunningham's writing.

They did not believe that the letters were in Cunningham's writing and they did not think he had written them.

E. H. McGlasson of Paris, cashier of the First State bank was the first witness on the stand. In the banking business he stated, it had been necessary for him to study various handwritings. He had known J. W. Cunningham 10 or 12 years and had had occasion to observe Cunningham's handwriting, had a great deal of correspondence with him and was familiar with his handwriting.

Witness was shown the letters in court and was asked if he had examined them a year ago. He testified that the letters were not in the handwriting of J. W. Cunningham. Asked to state if J. W. Cunningham wrote those letters, witness said: "No, sir; I don't think he did."

Cross examined witness said that he had never seen Cunningham write as much as were in those letters and on that kind of paper. His correspondence with Cunningham had been on business matters. Cunningham wrote a good, even hand, punctuated well and spelled well. He had never seen Cunningham display his handwriting.

On redirect examination asked to say if the letters before him were in the same writing, witness said that it looked like they might have been written by different persons but after a moment's further study he said that he presumed they were written by the same person.

Defense counsel asked McGlasson if he thought it was possible for Cunningham to have disguised his handwriting all through those letters. Objections were raised to the question but overruled. Witness testified that in his opinion it would not have been possible for Cunningham to have disguised his handwriting through the letters.

For another question by the State witness said he had not read the letters entirely through.

Leonard Snell of Deport, the next witness, testified that on the day of the sale of the Cunningham-Westbrook store at Deport about the first of March, 1921, he was standing in front of the store looking in through the glass door, Cunningham being on the inside of the store, when Dr. Steele walked up to the witness, put his hand on his shoulder and said: "There's a fellow I think it's a cowardly fellow to have to walk down here between two ladies. When I get to be that kind of a fellow I want somebody to take me out and shoot me."

On cross examination witness said that Steele had not called Cunningham's name and he could not swear as to whom he was talking about when he made the remarks.

The Cunningham-Westbrook store was sold that day at public auction, witness said. He understood that Cunningham bought it in and took possession.

G. A. Cravens, the next witness, testified that he was night watchman at the bank building in Deport, just north of the Cunningham building, for four months while work was in progress on the bank building. Some trenches in the course of the work had been made in the wall of the Cunningham building. He had seen Dr. Steele at the building one night about 10 o'clock witness said; they were looking around at the work then being done and he had remarked that Cunningham did not like those trenches.

Steele asked him, the witness said, if Cunningham had been to the building and witness had told him no but that he had been told that Cunningham didn't like them.

Dr. Steele then said, the witness testified: "He had better not let me see him down here; I'll kill the fellow."

This was in the latter part of September, 1920, witness said. He said Steele looked like he was when making the statement quoted.

Witness testified that during a period of several months in Deport he saw Dr. Steele on the streets about his business every day but did not see J. W. Cunningham down town at all.

On cross examination witness testified that the conversation with Steele at the bank building was at about 10 o'clock at night. He said that Steele looked like he was mad when he made the statement ascribed to him. He was questioned about the condition of the lights and how he could tell he had a lantern there.

Witness said he had not told Cunningham or any one else what Steele had said about Cunningham. On further cross examination he said he had related the conversation to his daughter.

On redirect examination witness was asked if it was not common knowledge in the town of Deport that Dr. Steele had prohibited J. W. Cunningham from coming on the streets and had said that he would kill Cunningham if he saw him on the streets.

Witness answered: "It was."

Ellis Jeffus of Paris, formerly of Deport, was next put on the stand by the defense. He was asked about the conversations he had had with Dr. E. H. B. Steele regarding J. W. Cunningham.

Witness testified that one time in company with Steele he had seen Cunningham on Cunningham's porch and had said to Steele: "Mr. Cunningham stays in pretty close now." That Steele had replied "Yes."

Witness had then said: "I would go to town; I don't believe Jim Rollins would hurt him."

Witness did not know to that time, he said, of the trouble between Steele and Cunningham.

On his having made the remark, witness said, Steele appeared "wrought up," and said if Cunningham did go to town he "wouldn't be surprised if he did get a warm reception."

This was given as in the early part of 1920.

In the summer of 1920, witness took Dr. Steele his dinner one day, he said, Steele being sick at the time. Steele, a widower, had told witness some time before that he was going to get married. On this visit the witness had noted work that Steele had had done on fixing up the interior of the residence, had complimented the house and said: "You have got it complete now except the woman."

Steele had answered to this, the witness stated, that he didn't intend to get married "until this Cunningham mess was settled."

In answer to other questions Jeffus said that he thought Steele had said that he "didn't want to get any woman into trouble."

The witness had left Deport, moving to Paris, in September, 1920. From the time of this conversation until he left Deport, he stated, he had not seen Cunningham on the streets of Deport.

On cross examination witness said that in the conversation that he had testified to Steele didn't say who would give Cunningham the warm reception if Cunningham went to town. He hadn't heard that Jim Rollins would kill Cunningham. He had heard something of trouble between Rollins and Cunningham, "but didn't know what was between them."

Witness didn't think, he said, on further examination, that he had ever heard Steele say that if the letters would be submitted to experts and the experts would say Cunningham didn't write them he would beg Cunningham's pardon. He was at the place where Steele was quickly after he was killed, and saw no firearms. He had seen a bullet hole in Steele's garage door, had noticed that it was in line with the window on Cunningham's porch but would not say that it was directly in line.

Will Hearn, who has lived in Paris for the last two months but was formerly of Deport was the next witness. He was working in a grocery store in Deport at the time of the trustee sale of the Cunningham-Westbrook stock, about the first of March, 1921, and had seen Steele on that day.

Asked about any conversation with Steele on that day in regard to Cunningham the witness said that between 12:30 and 1:30 o'clock, after the sale, he had seen Steele and that Steele had said: "Old man J. W. Cunningham came out today behind a woman; some day he'll come out and I'll get the hell out of here."

He said that Steele appeared very restless and seemed to be mighty mad, at the time of making the statement.

During the fifteen months before Dr. Steele was killed witness had seen Cunningham on the street just one time, he thought. He didn't know whether Steele was in town at that time or not. He saw Steele on the streets nearly every day.

Witness testified that it was common rumor that Steele had said that if J. W. Cunningham came on the streets he would kill him.

On cross examination the witness said that he hadn't heard of the letters which have figured in the case at the time that he heard Steele make the threat against Cunningham. He didn't ask Steele why he was wanting to kill Cunningham or what the trouble was, when he heard the threat. He had not told Cunningham of what Steele had said.

E. L. Cunningham, who lives four miles southwest of Deport was next placed on the stand. He is not a relative of the defendant.

He testified that he had seen Dr. Steele at Deport on the day of the sale of the Cunningham-Westbrook stock and that Steele had said that he "would have killed Cunningham, the fellow, if there hadn't been a woman with him."

On cross examination the witness said that he didn't remember who was present when Steele made the statement which he quoted.

J. R. Hutchison of Deport, the next witness placed on the stand, testified that he was a stockholder and director in the Cunningham-Westbrook store, and also that he had been a member of a committee that had attempted to effect a reconciliation between Steele and Cunningham.

J. W. Cunningham was manager of the Cunningham-Westbrook store, the witness stated, at first through the fall of 1919 and up into May, 1920. Then Walter Evans had become manager. The business had been continued until February, 1921, when it went into the hands of a receiver. The stock was sold at public auction, he said, and bought by Higginbotham-Bailey-Logan company. He didn't know whether they had sold the stock but knew that it had been opened up and Cunningham and Teague were running it now, he said. It had been opened up in April or May, 1921, after the death of Steele.

Witness said that he had sold Dr. Steele the residence which Steele had occupied in Deport, and was questioned at length about the location of the property, and the arrangement of the house, and of the location of the house with reference to the doors and porches at Cunningham's house, across the street.

After having influenza in the spring of 1919, Cunningham was restless, witness said, and "in a bad condition." A part of the time Cunningham was at his business and part of the time not. Cunningham was not in the store after the fall of 1919, he testified, and in May 1920 resigned as manager, saying that he was not able to give the business the attention it should have.

From the middle of December Cunningham was at home in bed most of the time, the witness said; he was home most all the year and went to town very seldom. He didn't know that Cunningham was transacting any business. He knew of letters.

The witness testified that it was common rumor that Steele had said if Cunningham came on the street he would kill him, or that there was "talk that one of them would get killed."

Mr. Hutchison testified that he had first had a conversation with Dr. Steele regarding Cunningham in the summer of 1919. Dr. Steele Grant had come to him; and told him that as a stockholder and director in the business with which Cunningham was connected, he wanted him to talk to Dr. Steele about Cunningham. Steele had told the witness that Cunningham was in a bad condition and was liable to commit suicide or do some harm to his family.

This was before the advent of the letters into the case.

To this Steele replied, witness testified, that he had had "plenty of propositions to drop it, but that he was not of the dropping kind; that there were just two ways to settle it, that Cunningham could either leave town or come on and shoot it out."

Dr. Steele had also said at the time, witness stated, that "looking for Cunningham was like looking for a jack rabbit."

Witness had told Cunningham of these statements.

Hutchison testified also to going to see Dr. Steele on a business matter, Steele having seen for him, Steele had then told him that he didn't want to keep the place which he had bought from the witness to live in, stating: "I don't think me and Mr. Cunningham will ever get our trouble settled."

The next conversation which the witness testified to having had with Steele regarding Cunningham was when "ten or twelve men got together trying to settle the proposition." He gave the names of a number of citizens of Deport as on this committee.

He told of their visit to Steele and said that Steele spoke of a statement he had made before regarding a settlement, but said now that a settlement would have to be made jointly, including both himself and J. H. Rollins; that another proposition would have to be made.

Steele had then given them a proposition in writing and a committee had been appointed to submit it to Cunningham. This proposition had been submitted to Cunningham, the witness said; Cunningham had said that he could not accept it, and had submitted a counter proposition, also in writing.

The written propositions were here introduced in court and were read to the jury, objection of State's counsel having been overruled, as given previously in this account of the day's proceedings.

The witness stated that after the counter proposition by Cunningham had been submitted to Steele that Steele had said "if Cunningham was crazy when he wrote the letters he was still crazy; that Rollins could settle any way he wanted to but he (Steele) was still going the gun route."

This was a week or ten days before Steele was killed, the witness said.

Hutchison told of talking with Steele at about this time about Cunningham and the trouble and said that Steele had said to him: "Dick, what would you do?"

To which the witness had replied, he testified, that he "would settle it some way we could both walk the streets."

He stated that Steele had answered to this: "Dick, I'm not a big enough man."

Witness said he had spoken to Steele about danger to his own life under such conditions and that Steele had said: "No, he hasn't got the nerve to shoot me."

The witness had communicated these things to Cunningham.

Questioned about the sanitarium witness said that he understood it was to cost $15,000. Dr. Steele roomed at the sanitarium, he said.

On cross examination witness was questioned about the proposition which had been read to the jury as submitted by J. W. Cunningham. This was written with pen and ink. Witness said that he didn't know who wrote it.

He was pressed by B. B. Sturgeon, conducting the cross examination for the State, to state his opinion as to whether this was in J. W. Cunningham's handwriting. He stated that with the exception of being written in a smaller hand than he had ever seen in any of Cunningham's handwriting.

He was urged by counsel to state his opinion, yes or no, as to whether it was or was not Cunningham's handwriting, but continued in reply to make the statement as given above. He said the Cunningham signature to the proposition was Cunningham's.

Witness did not remember the exact date of this proposition being submitted, but thought it was about the middle of March, 1921. "Was it a week or ten days before Cunningham shot Steele in the back?" counsel asked, to which the witness assented.

Witness was further asked on cross examination if he knew of anything that Steele had done to apologize for in the way of effecting a settlement, and said that he did not. He had heard of the letters but didn't know the virtue of Rollins' wife was attacked. Questioned further on efforts for a settlement between Cunningham and Steele, witness said that he just wanted to "permit them both to go on the streets," and at another point that he "was trying to get them both right."

Witness had been to Cunningham's house occasionally but didn't know that he had seen a gun there, had not seen a high-powered Winchester.

On redirect examination witness said that the letters in question were not brought to the committee that tried to effect a settlement between Steele and Cunningham; that Cunningham said that he did not write the letters, but that whatever was in the letters was untrue.

Elmer Evans, traveling salesman living in Dallas was the first witness of the afternoon. He had known Cunningham since 1900, he said, had had business transactions and a great deal of correspondence with him, and thought he knew Cunningham's handwriting.

The witness was given the letters in court and asked if the handwriting was Cunningham's, and answered, "Tis not."

Witness said that he had corresponded with Cunningham from March, 1916, up to August, 1921, and had received a good many letters from him.

Witness testified that he was in Deport on the day of the sale of the Cunningham-Westbrook stock of goods and saw Dr. Steele at the sale. He said that he had heard Steele "make only one statement; that he was looking for J. W. Cunningham." That was before the sale. The statement was made in front of the Cunningham-Westbrook store, he said.

On cross examination witness said that he had never seen J. W. Cunningham write as much with a pencil as was in the letters that had been shown him, and on that kind of paper. He had never seen Cunningham write in a disguised hand.

Steele had made the remark he had related, witness testified on

CARTER ANDERSON COMPANY

DIRECT MERCHANT BUYS STUDEBAKER

Tom Clement Repeats on the Make Because He Knows What Car Can Do

Tom Clement, the direct merchant drove a new Studebaker yesterday—a special six touring car. It was the second Studebaker that he has bought. He knew the merits of the car and was "sold" before he got to Sluder Bros. with his request that they fill the tank with oil boxes.

The road to Direct is not the best in Lamar county; and Mr. Clement has had experience with that road, hence his desire for a Studebaker to replace the car he has used for several years.

The Studebaker is the sort of car which is as much at home on the bad roads as it is on the concrete. It goes better on the smooth road, of course—which is the reason why smooth roads are so desirable.

But when it comes to the matter of negotiating the distance, the Studebaker "gets along." The construction is such as to minimize a lot of bumps in the road. They may be prominent in the scenery but they don't all get to the folks in the car. In fact, they have to be pretty bad before they shake up the occupants of the Studebaker.

DEATHS

Roy Vandyske Whitaker, the infant son of L. D. Whitaker and wife, living on route 3, died Wednesday evening.

C. G. Peach
C. G. Peach, a former resident of Lamar county, who was known to his friends as "Charley" Peach when he lived here died on Tuesday at his home at Gordon, Palo Pinto county. He was about 60 years old and was born and reared in Lamar county. He and a brother moved to Palo Pinto county together thirty years ago. He is survived by his wife and several children and by other relatives. The funeral will be held at Gordon.

WILD CATS ARE IN FINE FETTLE

Farmersville Is to Be the Opposition for Armistice Day Grid Contest

Paris Hi will try to uphold its undefeated record Saturday afternoon. The team is in good condition and the boys are anxious for a heavy game. The same old pep will characterize their playing as has done so all season. There will be seen in action Saturday a smooth working machine, which has power and still has an idea of playing some teams high up in the running.

Let it be said here that Paris Hi has not, by any means, decided to quit the fight on account of a mistake in the reading of the law by the rules committee which puts, for the time being, Paris out of the race. Several superintendents over Texas have expressed themselves in emphatic terms over the unjust ruling of the executive committee.

The fight will be kept up until Paris gets what is due her. In the meantime Coach Wright with his team under the leadership of Old Reliable Blake Anderson will be busy with Farmersville and Honey Grove. It will take a hard fight to whip either team, but Paris will do the fighting. By keeping a clean slate, it is likely that an opportunity will be given Paris later in the season to show what she can do against district or State champions. There is little doubt in any one's mind who is acquainted with the teams of this district as to who would have won, Paris easily had the edge on both Sulphur Springs and Atlanta. Many who have seen Waco and Austin play say that in some respects their team is superior to them.

It may be remembered by some that Waco last season did not join the league and had an undefeated team. Her team was as strong as the league champions and so regarded over the State. Paris Hi is going to fight on and continue to win if the people will continue to support her.

To get a test of what she has, see her play Farmersville and Honey Grove. Either of these teams is as strong or stronger than the champions of the district. For both have men they did not use while playing under interschool rules.

Let us celebrate Armistice Day by winning a good fight against Farmersville.

ADJUDGED INSANE IN FANNIN COUNTY

After He Had Been Tried Twice in Lamar County and Found of Sound Mind

O. P. Gibson, a well to do farmer who lives northeast of Petty, was indicted by the present grand jury in Judge Denton's court before it took a recess for assault to murder in two cases, one of the cases being for shooting his son-in-law, J. P. McCreight, who was living with him, and the other for shooting at a negro washwoman in the yard as he passed out of the house.

After the indictment he was tried in the county court on a charge of lunacy. The jury returned a verdict stating that in its opinion the defendant was not insane. The following week a new complaint was lodged charging him with lunacy, and for the second time the jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Friends and relatives of Gibson notified District Attorney Geo. P. Blackburn yesterday that Gibson had been tried in Fannin county on a lunacy charge and had been found insane.

In view of the verdict returned by the Fannin county jury Mr. Blackburn was asked to dismiss the case against Gibson.

The district attorney informed them that he would refuse to dismiss the cases, and that when they were tried Gibson and his attorneys will have to prove that he is insane. No attention will be paid to the lunacy trial in Fannin county.

HEAVY REALIZING EASILY CARED FOR

Price of Cotton Went into New High Ground for the Season in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—A continuation of the buying movement inspired by the bullish view of yesterday's ginning figures absorbed heavy realizing on an early reaction in the cotton market today and later sent prices into new high ground for the season.

December contracts sold up from 25.90 to 26.80 and closed at 26.63 with the general market closing steady off 5 to 17 points and showed considerable irregularity during the early trading as a result of heavy realizing, scattered Southern selling and selling for a reaction which was promoted by rather disappointing cables and nervousness over the Turkish situation.

January sold as low at 25.60 and March 25.33 before these offerings were absorbed, or about 20 to 23 points net lower; but a good deal of buying was reported to fix prices for the trade and there was an increased scattering demand as prices worked below the 26 cent level for December.

The demand tapered off again and last prices showed reactions of about 12 to 23 points from the best.

There were two or three reports of a less active spot demand in the South, but most advices said the spot markets showed continued firmness and Liverpool reported rallies from an early decline there due to trade buying.

Exports today 31,974, making 1,511,719 so far this season. Port receipts 60,146. United States port stocks 1,227,158.

GROUND WAS TOO HARD TO DIG POTATOES

C. N. Barlow, living between Blossom and Pattonville, said that he tried to dig some sweet potatoes Tuesday, but he couldn't plow deep enough to get the big ones up because the ground was too hard. The plow point cut them in two and part of them had to be left in the ground.

CHURCH NEWS

Conferences at Episcopal Church. A mass meeting was called yesterday afternoon at the parish house of the Episcopal church for a conference with Bishop Harry T. Moore, who spoke on the field work of the church and its needs today.

A second meeting, this time an evening service in the church, followed last night, and after the 10 o'clock service this morning, the third conference will be held.

Bishop Moore's address last night roughly outlined the topics discussed at the afternoon meeting, and he stressed the need of the church's missionary work, rather than regarding it in its usual sense of monetary terms.

It was in this sense that the Nationwide Campaign was misunderstood and the same fact was in some degree responsible for the general opinion that the campaign was a failure.

His text "Where there is no vision, the people perish," was taken from the 29th chapter of Proverbs and he explained this, with the illustration of contextual quotations, as meaning that unless God's people have the right conception and interpretation of His law (vision, according to Isaiah, being synonymous with law), their church could not endure.

In the case of the Nationwide Campaign, that phase of it which was accounted a failure, was due to the people's wrong idea of the purpose of the campaign—regarding it primarily from the financial standpoint, instead of as a fulfillment of God's command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel."

The church perishes where there is no obedience to God's laws—no feeling of personal interest, and of responsibility to mankind.

That the Nationwide Campaign was not a failure in this sense is proven by the fact that during the past six months, the church has sent out nearly fifty field workers, some of whom had offered their life-service as long ago as 1912 but were unable, for lack of funds, to be sent to the various posts.

At the recent triennial this year it was shown that more money for missions had been appropriated in the past year than ever before; the auxiliary's Blue Box fund, to which not more than a third of the women of the church contribute, amounted at that time to more than $700,000—all given for mission needs.

At this council, while thirty workers representing the church's missionary fields were gathered to tell of their work, thirty more, on board an ocean-going steamer, were leaving for their posts to spread the teachings of the Christ.

There are those who protest that they do not believe in foreign missions, but a glance at history will show that if the Christian Church does not show the way to a higher civilization—the sunnier, more altruistic civilization of Christianity—the heathen Orient will repeat history's precedent to lead or submit to leadership.

It is personal interest and conviction that must actuate us first of all and next, the sense of responsibility in obeying God's command to teach His word.

When the call came from Europe in 1917, we did not hesitate nor falter; the vision was clear and we responded unreservedly. It must be the same with this call from the church.

Sunday Services at First Christian. Rev. J. Leslie Fennell preached to large crowds at the First Christian church on Sunday morning and evening.

His night theme was "Running Ahead of Schedule Time." He propounded this as a plea for temperance in all things. It is misuse and excess which make for evil; there is no sin in a simple game of cards as a diversion, no sin in further cross examination, "in general," he couldn't tell who else was there and heard it. He had not told Cunningham of it.

DEFENSE RELATED THREATS MADE BY
DR. E. H. B. STEELE

M. W. Bowers was called to the witness stand and asked about the death of Ed Long. State's counsel stated that he admitted the death of Long and the witness was executed. Defense counsel then read to jury the testimony of Long as given at the former trial of this case.

This testimony was to the effect that the witness had had much correspondence with J. W. Cunningham, and had received 50 or 100 letters from him; that the letters in court had been submitted to him and that he did not believe there were in Cunningham's handwriting, did not think Cunningham wrote them; that they were not similar to Cunningham's writing.

State counsel read from the record of the former trial Long's statement on cross examination that the writing in the letters shown him looked to be disguised.

J. J. White of Cunningham, who gave his occupation as a laborer, testified to going to Deport in February, 1921, hearing Dr. Steele at that time make a remark concerning Cunningham. He went to the Cunningham store, the witness said, and found store closed. After leaving the store, he said, he met Dr. Steele and asked him if he could tell him where to find J. W. Cunningham.

He testified that Steele had replied: "Yes —, I can. He's at home tied to his wife's apron string. If you want to see him you will have to go there. He doesn't come to town because he's afraid of lead poison."

The witness said that Steele appeared "touched up" when he made this statement.

On cross examination the witness was pressed for a definite statement as to what he meant by being a laborer and said he labored at anything he got to do. He was subpoenaed as a witness in this case he said, on November 7, this year, and not before. He hadn't told Cunningham about Steele's statement and didn't remember having told anybody else. He didn't know how anybody had learned about it, but supposed he must have told somebody and it got out that way.

To further cross examination questions witness said that he bought goods from Cunningham; had bought them on a credit; had paid for part of them and still owed the rest. He had last seen Cunningham about three months ago when he was working in the Big Sulphur bottom. Cunningham had come out "to try to collect what I owed him," he said. No, he replied to a further question, he didn't pay Cunningham what he owed him. He denied that he told Cunningham then about what Steele had said to him in Deport, or that he was told then that he was wanted as a witness. Witness was asked to tell what kind of a day it was when he was in Deport, who else he saw besides Steele and a number of other questions, which he had no definite recollection.

State counsel asked also if witness went to Cunningham's house that day after he had been told by Steele that he would find Cunningham at home and replied that he did not; he did not have time, he said, as he had "some business of my own" to attend to.

On redirect examination witness said that there was a gin account pending between S. A. Cunningham and that S. A. Cunningham had asked him, if it would not be too much trouble, to speak to J. W. Cunningham about this matter while in Deport. He had previously testified to working during a certain period at S. A. Cunningham's gin.

Witness testified further of redirect examination, that he had met Steele immediately after leaving Cunningham's store.

A. C. Nixon, railway station agent at Deport, was the next witness. He lives next door to Cunningham, he stated, their houses being about 50 feet apart. He described Cunningham's physical condition during 1919 as being a "very nervous man." He had talked with Cunningham frequently, he stated, and Cunningham appeared "very different from what he used to be." This had reference, it was brought out, to after Cunningham had had the flu.

Cunningham had been very nervous, the witness testified, "from 1919 all the way through, and not the same man since the trouble came up." He told of Cunningham being very restless and sleepless at night.

Witness testified to Cunningham's staying at home for a period of several months.

Asked if it was not generally known, common rumor that Steele had said if Cunningham came on the streets he would kill him, witness answered: "That was my understanding."

On cross examination the witness said that he didn't know how long Cunningham was sick with the influenza, and said that the people there didn't visit much where there was flu.

He had seen the change in Cunningham, witness said, before he had heard of trouble between Cunningham and Steele. He said that Cunningham "talked sensibly, but not like he used to." There was no difference in the speed of Cunningham's conversation. He had seen some pistols on the mantle in Cunningham's home; had seen pistols larger and pistols smaller, he would describe them as of medium size.

W. M. Franks of Deport was the next witness. He testified that he knew Cunningham during 1919, and that he knew of trouble between Cunningham and Steele. Asked about Cunningham's physical condition during 1919, previous to the trouble between him and Steele, witness replied "He looked in very bad health."

Witness said that he was one of a committee of 12 or 14 that tried to bring about a settlement between Cunningham and Steele. He said that he had first had a conversation with Dr. Steele about the trouble three or four months before Steele was killed.

He had told Steele, Mr. Franks said, that the trouble "was too bad for our little town," and asked him if it couldn't be settled.

He testified that Steele had then said "If Cunningham would sign a lie bill and say he had written the letters he would drop it."

Asked if Steele had said anything then about either him or Cunningham getting hurt, witness replied: "I don't remember. He might have said it, but I don't remember now."

In reply to a question concerning another conversation, witness testified that Steele had said that he would never be hurt by Cunningham; that he might "have his hands tied and say 'booby,' and Cunningham would jump a brick wall; that he might be hurt by Cunningham's money hiring some one."

Witness told of another conversation with Steele in company with Rev. C. P. Combs and J. E. Hutchinson, when, he stated, Steele had said if Cunningham would sign a lie bill he would drop it.

Asked what Steele had said would be done if Cunningham refused to do this, witness replied: "To the best of my knowledge he said that one of them would have to leave town or there would be a shooting."

Steele had come before the committee, previously mentioned, once or twice, the witness said.

Asked what Steele had said would be done if Cunningham refused to do this, witness replied: "To the best of my knowledge he said that one of them would have to leave town or there would be a shooting."

Steele had come before the committee, previously mentioned, once or twice, the witness said.

The witness told of a trip in a car, with Steele when they went to talk over the trouble and said he had asked: "Did Rollins put it in court?" He said that Steele had then said "Cunningham would beat this case. No use to put it in court. He was not going to let it go that way."

Witness said that before starting on this trip he had seen two automatic pistols in Steele's room. Before starting in the car, he said, Steele put one of the pistols in his pocket and one in a satchel. This, he said, was a short time before Steele was killed.

The witness, like other witnesses during the day, was asked if it was general rumor in Deport that Steele had said that if Cunningham came on the streets he would kill him. He replied that it was, that there "would be a killing."

Witness said that he never saw Cunningham in town during 14 or 15 months; Steele was generally there.

On cross examination the witness said that the committee referred to had refused to see the letters understood to be the cause of the trouble between Cunningham and Steele. Asked if Steele had not said if the letters were submitted to experts and the experts would say if Cunningham did not write them he would beg Cunningham's pardon, witness said: "Something to that effect."

A little later in the cross examination witness definitely answered the question as to the experts proposition in the affirmative. He didn't go to Cunningham with this proposition, he said.

On redirect examination witness said that he thought the proposition in the affirmative. He withdrew by Steele when Steele said that a proposition by him would have to be made jointly with Rollins.

Answering another question on cross examination, he said that Rollins had been seen about the experts proposition.

Gid Rucker was the next witness. He stated that he was in the employ of J. W. Cunningham part of the time, that he had worked for Cunningham, collecting and working in the store. He was city marshal of Deport three years, his term as marshal expiring in April 1921.

On the day that Dr. E. H. B. Steele was killed in Deport, March 30, 1921, he was in his car starting from his residence to town when he met Dr. J. H. Moore and was told about the killing, he stated.

He went to Cunningham's house, he said, and went in and told Cunningham to consider himself under arrest. Cunningham surrendered to him.

He called Norman Whitsell, the constable, he said. Some one spoke to him about holding an inquest over Dr. Steele's body, witness said, but he told him to go ahead and move the body, as Cunningham had said that he killed him.

He was marshal at Deport in 1919, witness said, and Cunningham was mayor. He was with Cunningham a good deal. Asked about Cunningham's physical condition in 1919 he said that Cunningham was not able to work and was not out very much.

Witness remembered the beginning of trouble between Cunningham and Steele in the fall of 1919. He was marshal at that time. After the beginning of the trouble Cunningham remained at home almost continuously until the killing of Steele, he testified.

The witness told of a conversation with Dr. Steele when he said they went to the back of a store in company with Dick Hutchinson and he spoke to Steele about desiring to get the trouble settled. He said that Steele had said there was only one way to settle it—sign a lie bill, leave town, or shoot it out; the only way to settle with the

Two weeks later, Rucker testified, he sat down to talk with Steele and brought up the subject again and that Steele had said: "Now I don't want to insult you, but there's only one way in the world—shoot it out here, down town. It wouldn't worry me to kill him, the —, if I could get him out from under his wife's dress."

He stated that Steele had said that Cunningham would stay at home as long as he (Steele) was in Deport, and had added if the ever came out I'll kill him.

The witness had reported these statements to Cunningham.

Rucker told of going to Cunningham's house on the day of the sale of the Cunningham-Westbrook stock and taking Cunningham down to the store. He told how he arranged with some one to open the back door of the store so that he could slip Cunningham in without his being seen by Steele. Mrs. Cunningham was in the car and on the way they met Mrs. E. O. Thompson who also got in the car with them, he stated.

Witness then related that on arriving at the alley back of the store he saw Steele leaning against a telephone pole and looking very mad, and that he walked so as to keep himself between Cunningham and Steele until he could get Cunningham into the store. Steele then tried to get in the store and he asked Dennis Jeffers to watch Steele, witness testified.

Witness testified that Steele was mad, when Cunningham went into the store and that a little later he saw Steele "in the drug store raising Cain."

Cunningham was not in the store over 15 minutes, the witness said, and after the trouble he immediately took him out and to the car, Elmer Evans walking on one side of Cunningham and Rucker on the other.

Witness told of bringing Cunningham to Paris one day and taking him to the Gibraltar hotel. He had left Steele at Deport, he said, but soon after getting here saw Steele standing on the streets of Paris and looking very mad. He had gone back to the Gibraltar and told Cunningham to stay in his room, he testified.

He testified that he told Cunningham of these and other threats that he heard.

On the morning that Dr. Steele was killed, witness said, he had seen Steele looking into various stores in Deport. He had heard that Cunningham was down town before 12 o'clock, while Steele was on a trip to Paris.

As to common rumors of threats by Steele of killing Cunningham if he came down town, witness said that they reached him a stage where some of the children were afraid to go to school and some of the people were uneasy about going on the streets for fear of a shooting.

On cross examination witness said yes, he was a peace officer and had done nothing toward arresting Steele on account of the threats or carrying firearms. As city marshal he had no right to do that, he said.

Witness was asked on cross examination how many times he had been arrested in the last five years, and after some question as to whether he should answer the question or not, answered: "One time." Asked on what charge he was arrested he again took up the question of whether he should answer or not, and then replied that it was on a charge of transporting liquor. Asked if Cunningham was not one of his main witnesses at that trial witness said that he was not, but that he thought he went on the stand.

Witness denied on cross examination any knowledge of the letters, and said he had not asked Dr. Steele what the trouble was about when Steele was saying that it couldn't be settled.

On redirect examination witness stated that his arrest and trial on a charge of transporting liquor was after the J. W. Cunningham case came up, that a member of the private prosecution in his case is also a member of the private prosecution in the Cunningham case and that he was acquitted when his trial was held.

A grand jury of twelve good men indicted you, didn't it?" State counsel asked.

And immediately defense counsel asked if every member of that grand jury and every witness in his case was not an enemy of Cunningham. While objection was being raised to this question, and by the time it was out of the mouth of the interrogator, witness said: "Yes, sir, every one of them."

E. O. Thompson, who conducts a drug store at Deport, was the next witness. He testified to Dr. Steele coming into the drug store on the morning that he was killed, after he had returned from a trip to Paris, and asking: "Where is —?" Witness had heard that J. W. Cunningham had been down town a few minutes that morning.

Witness said Steele looked very mad and described him going out the back door of the drug store and then coming back through the front. Steele had on an overcoat, he said, and kept his hands in his pocket.

On cross examination witness said that the street behind the store had paved gutters, was a public street and was traveled by people a great deal. He had been with Steele so much he said that he could tell both by looks and tone of voice when Steele was mad. He didn't think it cool enough for an overcoat when Steele was in the store.

Mrs. E. O. Thompson, the last witness of the day, testified as to meeting Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham and Gid Rucker in the car when they were on their way to the sale of the Cunningham-Westbrook stock and of going down town with them.

When they got out of the car, witness said, she and Mrs. Cunningham were in front of Mr. Cunningham and Gid Rucker. She noticed Mrs. Cunningham begin to tremble, and then looked and saw Dr. Steele standing by the telephone pole.

Soon after she had gone to the drug store of her husband, E. O. Thompson, witness said, which was soon after getting to town, in the car. Dr. Steele had come into the store looking mad and asked her where she became a bodyguard. She testified that she ignored Steele's question because of his looking so mad and speaking in the tone that he did, and that he went out of the store and a few minutes later returned and repeated the question. She told him then, she said, that if she was a bodyguard she had become one just a few minutes before.

A few days after this, witness said, Dr. Steele had come into the store and apologized to her for asking the question as he did, but said that he was so mad that he didn't know what he was doing. Dr. Steele said, she testified: "My respect for you caused me to let an opportunity go by I had been waiting for many days. I had planned and that was the only chance I had."

NOW READY

The Nauman Flower Shop is now open and ready to fill orders for flowers for all occasions. Telephone 373.

This year we expect to see a good market for Thanksgiving turkeys. In order to get them to the Eastern consumers it will be necessary to start them earlier than usual, as it takes practically twice as long to get a freight car to the Eastern markets now as it did under normal conditions; the strike is not settled by any means.

You should pick out your large birds, gobblers weighing 12 pounds and over; hens weighing 8 pounds and over, that are in good condition and bring them in for the Thanksgiving market not later than the 15th of November. However, it appears that with the large crop in view that the best prices will be paid between the 1st and the 10th of November, will probably lower prices starting about the 11th. WE ADVISE EARLY MOVEMENT OF YOUR LARGE TURKEYS. Hold the small ones for the Christmas market. Our dressing stations open October 28th, at all points.

Here we wish to call your attention to the advantage of selling your turkeys to our Company: Mr. Foster, our President, has been in the poultry industry in Southern Oklahoma and Northern Texas continuously for seven years.

Our houses are open the year round to receive your produce. We actually operate during some of the Summer months at a considerable cash loss, in other words if we would close our houses on the 1st day of June and open them on the 1st day of November we would have several thousand dollars more money than we would have to continue them during these dull months.

But we realize the farmers must have a market the year round and we believe it is his duty to patronize the industry that continues buying in his community during the entire twelve months of the year.

There are always a large number of small fly by night dealers who are ready to open up on the first day of November and stay during the rush season. Some of these are legitimate and they are fair dealers, but there are some who believe in "getting theirs" while the getting is good. Better be safe than sorry; patronize the house you know will treat you right.

We buy turkeys, ducks, geese, guineas, hens, fryers, roasters, butter, and pecans.
